

Afterword

This project started in 2012. In FY 2013, the base office was moved to Namie Koryu Kaikan (a center for promoting communication among people who evacuated from Namie Town to Iwaki City) and renamed as JRCS Public Health Room for Namie. The project activities were conducted without problems thanks to the JRCS HQ, the public authorities including the Mayor of Namie Town and understandings and support from the people of Namie Town. We appreciate it so much.

We would also like to express our deep gratitude to the Great East Japan Earthquake and Tsunami Recovery Task Force and the Nursing Department of the JRCS HQ, the Fukushima Chapter, JRC Fukushima Blood Center, the JRCCN, and above all the nurses dispatched from nationwide JRC hospitals who engaged in the health interviews.

We hope to make our efforts so that we can continue these activities as part of supporting the recovery of Fukushima. To make this happen, continued support from relevant parties will be highly appreciated.
